WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

RUBEN LUIS LEON SHUMPERT,

Defendant.

NO. CR04-494MJP

SENTENCING MEMORANDUM

Comes now the United States of America, by and through John McKay, United States Attorney for the Western District of Washington, and William H. Redkey, Jr., Assistant United States Attorney for said District, and submits the Government's Sentencing Memorandum in the above-entitled cause.

I. INTRODUCTION

Defendant Ruben Luis Leon Shumpert is before the court for sentencing following his plea of guilty on December 9, 2005, to Felon in Possession of a Firearm, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1) and Transferring Counterfeit U.S. Currency, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 473. He is scheduled to be sentenced at 11:15 a.m., on July 9, 2006.

II. PRESENTENCE REPORT

The Government has no objection to the facts or the guidelines calculations contained in the U.S. Probation Office's Presentence Reports.

III. PLEA AGREEMENT

The plea agreements in these cases are identical in all important respects. The salient feature of each is that the parties stipulate pursuant to Fed. R. Crim. P. 11(c)(1)(c) that the appropriate sentence of imprisonment is in the range of 24-30 months, with credit for 143 days time served in King County Jail while the federal warrants served as detainees. The otherwise applicable guideline range is 37-46 months.

IV. BACKGROUND

This case began based on information that a group of men in the Rainier Valley in Seattle professed to be followers of the Muslim faith and spoke in bellicose terms using jihad rhetoric. Concerned that the group might pose a security threat to the interests of the United States, the FBI initiated an investigation using confidential sources to form associations with the group members and to report their observations to the FBI.

Over a period of about two years, the sources continued to report and to develop criminal cases against the group. Fortunately, it was eventually determined that individuals in the group were unable or unwilling to engage in acts of terrorism. However, several individuals were indicted for bank fraud, others for document fraud, and still others for firearms violations. The defendant fell into the latter group.

As the investigation unfolded, it became clear that the defendant fancied himself the leader of the group. He operated the Crescent Cuts Barber Shop, first in the north end of the Rainier Valley and then later farther south in the Rainier Valley of Seattle. The shop served as a casual meeting place for the group and like-minded individuals, mostly African American men with criminal histories who had converted to Islam, either in prison or after contact later with prison converts. According to the FBI sources, the conversations at the barber shop often turned to militancy and the need to be ready for jihad against the “kafir,” or non-believers. The acquisition of firearms was a frequent topic of conversation in that connection. The defendant not only

1 supplied a firearm to one source, the payment for which occurred at the barber shop,
2 he personally advanced $700 for the purchase of a firearm by another source. On one
3 occasion, a source saw a SKS rifle magazine in the barber shop.

4 Conversations in the defendant's shop also featured open support for jihad, as
5 well as the desire and duty of Muslims to travel to Iraq, Sudan and Afghanistan to fight
6 alongside their Muslim brothers. In addition, there were frequent derogatory
7 references to Jews. Finally, the defendant maintained in his computer in the barber
8 shop several jihad motivational DVDs which he encouraged others to view. If 9 youngsters came in to play video games he would encourage them first to view the 10 motivational DVDs. The subject matter of the DVDs included a glowing tribute to the 11 "19 Martyrs," referring to the 9-11 terrorists; a "Dirty Kafir" rap song in which the 12 performers urged "jihad against the Crusaders," "send the U.S. home in body bags"
13 and "be prepared to fight the infidels;" six Chechen productions one of which showed 14 the assembly of a roadside bomb and featuring very graphic film of mangled corpses;
15 and other DVDs urging the massacre of "unclean unbelievers," graphic footage of pro-
16 Palestinian propaganda entitled "Ideal Terrorism;" and other DVDs which encouraged
17 killing of "kafir," meaning those who are not Muslims.

18 Moreover, the sources reported that the defendant encouraged an atmosphere of 19 violence to pervade the barber shop. Anyone who disagreed with the defendant were 20 threatened and intimidated. In one instance, a man and his wife, who were the owners
21 of a restaurant located below the second story barber shop, were assaulted by thugs
22 incited by the defendant because they were not perceived to be "good Muslims."
23 Another individual reported that the defendant twice beat him up for an imagined slight.
24 The defendant in his leadership role maintained contacts with local gangs such as the 25 Deuce 8's and the United Latinos.

26 While in custody at the FDC pending sentencing, the defendant attempted to 27 obtain the support of racial, religious and civil rights groups by falsely claiming that his 28 prosecution was motivated by bias or prejudice, when he well knew that was not the

1 case. And in recorded conversations from the FDC, in reference to one of the sources
2 he said that he was going to hit someone in the mouth when released from custody. He
3 also said in reference to his militant leadership that when released he was going to do it
4 over again “bigger and badder.”

5 So, although the FBI ultimately determined that no violation of the federal 6 terrorism statutes occurred, it is clear that the agency was rightly concerned throughout
7 its investigation with what was happening at the Crescent Cuts Barber Shop and with 8 the defendant’s leadership in what was a potentially dangerous group.

9 V. SENTENCING FACTORS

10 The U.S. Probation Office’s Presentence Report accurately sets out the pertinent
11 facts relating to this case, but a few facts bear emphasis.

12 With respect to the firearm offense, the defendant has suggested that he is 13 entitled to the benefit of imperfect entrapment at sentencing, although he acknowledges
14 that he was not entrapped to provide the gun to the FBI source. The facts simply do
15 not support his argument. It is important to note that the intent of the FBI agents in 16 contacting the defendant was to have him put the FBI source in touch for tactical
17 reasons with another FBI source who could supply a gun; it was not the intent to target
18 the defendant himself. The defendant made the decision to provide the gun himself
19 rather than to simply introduce the source to someone else. It is a fair inference that 20 the defendant was motivated at least in part by money, and in part by a desire to appear
21 to be a person who could make things happen. And although it is true that he was 22 initially reluctant to provide a gun to the source - not because the defendant was a
23 convicted felon, but because he wasn’t sure it was wise or necessary for the source to 24 have a gun - he eventually did so without reservation. It is untrue, however, as the 25 transcripts of their conversations attest, that the source appealed to the defendant’s
26 religious principles to overcome his reservations.

27 With respect to the counterfeiting offense, the defendant readily admits his 28 culpability, but his motive in providing the currency is unclear, leaving investigators to

1 speculate as to whether he provided the counterfeit currency in order to strike a
2 misguided blow at the country's financial stability for religious or political reasons, or
3 to bolster his image in his like-minded peers, or simply for the money.

4 VI. SENTENCING RECOMMENDATION

5 For the foregoing reasons, and in consideration of the seriousness of the offenses,
6 we recommend that the court impose a term of imprisonment of 30 months.

7 DATED this 18th day of July, 2006.
